

acaData.csv

This data file is related to the Affordable Care Act (ACA), and it includes the following columns:

- AKorHI: A binary indicator, likely representing whether the data row pertains to Alaska or Hawaii (two states that often have different parameters due to their unique geographic locations).
  - famsize: The family size.
  - ruleYear: The year the rule applied.
  - IncomeLowerBound: The lower income boundary for the income bin.
  - IncomeBinXMax: The upper income boundary for income bin X, where X is a number from 1 to 7.
  - Affordability: A numerical value representing the affordability percentage of health insurance.
  - ShareOfIncomesBinXInitial: The initial share of incomes in income bin X, where X is a number from 1 to 7.
  - ShareOfIncomesBinXFinal: The final share of incomes in income bin X, where X is a number from 1 to 7.

average.CO.csv

This data file contains average values for specific parameters in the state of Colorado. The columns include:

- stateName: The name of the state.
  - stateFIPS: The Federal Information Processing Standards code for the state.
  - AKorHI: A binary indicator, similar to the one in the ACA data.
  - famsize: The family size.
  - numkidsInCare: The number of children in care.
  - ruleYear: The year the rule applied.
  - AssetTest: The asset test limit.
  - IncomeDisregard: A monetary value that is disregarded when calculating income for eligibility purposes.
  - InitialEligibility: A measure of initial eligibility, possibly the income limit.
  - ContinuousEligibility: A measure of continuous eligibility, possibly the income limit.
  - OverageOption: Possibly an indicator of whether or not there is an option for those over a certain age.
  - BinXMax: The maximum value for bin X, where X is a number.
  - CopayBinX: The copay for bin X, where X is a number.
  - countyortownName: The name of the county or town, which in this case is set as "state.average", indicating that these values are averages for the state.

average.FL.csv

This data file contains average values for specific parameters in the state of Florida.

- stateName: The name of the state. In this case, it is Florida.
  - stateFIPS: The Federal Information Processing Standards code for the state. For Florida, it's 12.
  - AKorHI: A binary indicator. It's likely to represent whether the data row pertains to Alaska or Hawaii.
  - famsize: The size of the family.
  - ruleYear: The year the rule applied.
  - AssetTest: The asset test limit. This may represent the maximum amount of assets a person or family can have and still qualify for certain assistance programs.
  - IncomeDisregard: This may be the amount of income that is not counted when determining eligibility for assistance programs.
  - InitialEligibility: This may represent the income limit for initial eligibility for an assistance program.
  - ContinuousEligibility: This may represent the income limit for maintaining eligibility for an assistance program once enrolled.
  - OverageOption: This could be an indicator of whether there is an option for those over a certain age, or if there are special rules for those over a certain age.
  - BinXMax: These columns (where X is a number from 1 to 20) likely represent the maximum values for different income bins. The bins are likely used to categorize families into different groups based on their income.
  - CopayBinX: These columns (where X is a number from 1 to 20) likely represent the copay amounts associated with the corresponding income bins.
  - countyortownName: The name of the county or town. Here, it's "state.average", indicating these values are averages for the state.

average.NV.csv

---

This data file represents data for the state of Nevada. The columns in the CSV file associated with this variable are:

- stateName: The name of the state.
- stateFIPS: The Federal Information Processing Standards code for the state.
- AKorHI: A binary indicator, likely representing whether the data row pertains to Alaska or Hawaii.
